Financial Highlights

Spending by out-of-state attendees attending events at the Washington State Convention Center since its opening in 1988 has reached $4.4 billion.

In fiscal 2013, spending by out-of-state attendees added an average of $857,553 per day to Washington’s economy, and directly generated an estimated 3,176 jobs*.

*THIS NUMBER REPRESENTS FULL-TIME EMPLOYMENT

For fiscal 2013, WSCC continued its historic pattern of operating in the black, a statement very few convention centers can make.

A message from Governor Jay Inslee

As Governor, my vision for Washington is a highly desirable, prosperous, healthy state that draws visitors and potential new industry, while supporting local businesses.

To realize this vision, we need to focus on the state’s economic development and create new employment opportunities. The Washington State Convention Center has historically been instrumental in achieving both of these goals. The Center has generated $4.4 billion in out-of-state spending in the past 25 years and has provided countless employment opportunities in Seattle and around the state.

The Convention Center’s food program sources local and sustainable food and beverages from Washington growers, farmers and suppliers. In 2013, over 600 cases of Washington apples and over 7,000 bottles of local wine were consumed through the WSCC food program. A high demand for Washington-grown food and wine leads to greater employment numbers and a more stable economy throughout the state.

Congratulations on another year of exceptional service, and please accept my best wishes for continued success in the years ahead.

Very truly yours,

Jay Robert Inslee
Governor of Washington
A message from King County Executive Dow Constantine

With a worldwide reputation for innovation and entrepreneurship, King County is the ideal destination for national and global assemblies – if we only had the facilities large enough to host them.

The Washington State Convention Center ranks 55th in size across the U.S. The Center has to turn away almost as much business as it books. To draw conventions and meetings to the region, we need a facility that can accommodate more and larger gatherings throughout the year.

I will continue to work for the much-needed expansion of the Convention Center, in partnership with the Washington State Convention Center Board. A new state-of-the-art facility would bolster the local workforce, creating thousands of new jobs in construction and in hotels, restaurants, retail, and hospitality.

This is an important year for Convention Center expansion, as more of the pieces fall into place. With the purchase of the Honda property, the hiring of project managers, and the establishment of crucial timelines, construction on a new facility could begin as early as 2017.

King County’s economy is getting back on track after the recession, as shown by recent employment numbers and the increasing number of Fortune 500 companies that choose to do business here. The Washington State Convention Center plays a critical part in our growing economy, and I am proud to be one of its strongest advocates.

Sincerely,

Dow Constantine
King County Executive
A message from Seattle Mayor Ed Murray

Seattle is a special place to live. Leaders, visionaries, artists, educators, public servants, entrepreneurs and risk takers all choose to live here, making Seattle one of the most innovative, diverse cities in the U.S. Washington State Convention Center has been instrumental in the health of the city by its many cultural and financial contributions.

Since the 1988 opening of the Convention Center, almost $273 million has been contributed in sales taxes to the state from delegate spending, and almost $163 million has been provided in benefits to local institutions. The Center helped create the Jim Ellis Freeway Park which connects First Hill to Downtown and provides a beautiful downtown green space. The Convention Center developed low-income housing, and has strengthened local business and continues to create demand for a thriving downtown dining, theater and retail scene.

The Center is now facing a major challenge. Simply put, the national convention industry has outgrown the Center and conventions are looking elsewhere to hold events and meetings. A practical solution lies in the creation of a new facility, which will create jobs, add new revenues to the city, and enhance downtown Seattle and adjoining neighborhoods. The only way to achieve an undertaking of this magnitude is by thoughtful, considerate collaboration between the Convention Center, city, county and state government entities, local businesses and residents.

A new facility will benefit Seattle by increasing new development, continuing to feed a thriving local economy, and strengthening the connection to adjoining neighborhoods. I am excited to be a part of this tremendous opportunity and want to thank the board of directors and staff of the Washington State Convention Center for helping to make Seattle the thriving, vibrant city that it is.

Sincerely,

Ed Murray
Mayor of Seattle
The State of the Convention Center

2013 proved to be a busy, strong and profitable year for Washington State Convention Center. As the national economy strengthened, large convention shows kept the building filled most of the year. As a result, space opportunities for local meetings and events were relatively limited, but the Convention Center sales staff excelled in booking smaller meetings on shorter timelines, filling in the gaps. The fact that the Convention Center had such a stable year demonstrates that Seattle is still a very vibrant and alluring city for both local and national meeting industries. In addition to continued financial success, WSCC maintains strong relationships with Visit Seattle, the local hospitality industry and downtown retailers. These vital partnerships bolster the Seattle meeting experience as a whole and contribute to our success at attracting national convention and meeting planners.

While the past year was very successful, marketing the Convention Center was still a significant focus in 2013. A strong marketing effort is crucial for creating consistent messaging and brand recognition, which in turn solidifies our presence in the industry, draws in new business and allows the Center to strategically pursue sales opportunities. A key step in strengthening our marketing efforts is the initial effort towards the development and implementation of a new website for WSCC. The new site will have a seamless user experience that will make the process of obtaining information, booking meetings and attending events simpler and easy to navigate.

Another key accomplishment for Fiscal Year 2013 was the completion of a facilities renovation project, which will keep the building in first-class condition after 25 years of operations. The two-part effort consisted of an initial $21 million investment, used to purchase new furniture, install carpeting and wall furnishings, create cozy lounge spaces, and implement digital signage and new way-finding. Other renovations included a complete overhaul of all restrooms and the creation of an elegant executive conference room. The second part of this multiple year project was to create a major capital projects program that outlines major maintenance items that need to be addressed and identifies an annual list of projects that need to be completed over the next five years. The board established a funding mechanism of $4 million. per year to pay for these annual projects and provide necessary funding for the facilities’ future needs. This new program allows for continuous system upgrades, such as lighting controls, conversion to environmentally friendly energy methods, and upgrades in the garages. Building upgrades are essential for maintaining a sustainable, efficient building and keeping recurring maintenance costs to a minimum. A state-of-the-art facility keeps current clients motivated to return to the Center, draws potential retailers who generate revenue for the Center and provides services to our clients and the downtown neighborhoods.

Perhaps the most significant focus of 2013 was the effort put forth toward expansion of the Washington State Convention Center, which included the purchase of the Honda properties on Olive Way. This purchase represents a significant step forward in the Board’s efforts to keep all of its options open in the pursuit of a much needed expansion program to host more delegates and larger conventions. As it stands, national conventions that do not fit in the current building are forced to look to other cities, such as Vancouver, Denver or Portland. Local businesses will be strengthened by the economic impact of the new opportunities provided by increased delegate spending at an additional convention and meeting facility. The Seattle hospitality industry will benefit from the influx of new out-of-state visitors drawn to the new facility—this growth will create new jobs in the downtown core, which will have a ripple effect throughout the region and the state.

2014 will see a continued effort in determining the feasibility of additional expansion. Design and project management teams will be retained and an environmental impact statement for the potential development project will be prepared so the Board can make strategic decisions about the future operations of the Center. If expanding the Washington State Convention Center makes sense and can be financed, construction could start in early 2017.

Sincerely,

Frank K. Finneran

Emerald City Comicon returned to WSCC for its sixth year. It generated nearly $500,000 in revenue and over 5,000 room nights.
Convention Center Operations - DEPARTMENTAL REPORTS

PARKING
- Revenue from the two WSCC parking garages came in at $3,775,712 in 2013.
- The main garage boasts a steady occupancy rate.
- Popular consumer shows such as the Northwest Flower & Garden Show, Seattle Wedding Show and Emerald City Comicon draw large regional audiences that often fill the garages to capacity.

FACILITY SERVICES
- WSCC contracts with three independent vendors to provide in-house technical services for meeting and tradeshow clients: audio visual; internet & telecommunications connectivity and electrical services.
- Revenues from facility services were $2,311,036 in 2013.

FOOD SERVICE
- Food service revenues reached $15,693,512 in 2013.
- ARAMARK, the exclusive food service provider since the facility opened in 1988, continues to work closely with WSCC to provide the highest quality products and services to clients.
- A large portion of the food and beverage items served at WSCC is locally sourced and sustainable. ARAMARK’s waste-reduction programs are award-winning.

PROCUREMENT
- WSCC has long been committed to using a broad range of businesses in the procurement of its goods, services and equipment. As a member of the State of Washington’s purchasing cooperative, WSCC advertises its major solicitations to a diverse set of potential suppliers, and can also take advantage of state-administered contracts. In addition, the Center has relationships with a number of minority- and women-owned business enterprises (MWBE) which are used on a regular basis.

“In 2013, Macy’s downtown Seattle store saw an increase in visitor sales of 13.9% from last year. This number not only includes leisure travel visitors, but is directly correlated with the number of convention groups and attendees that were in the area.

Specifically during the Association for Research and Vision and Ophthalmology (May 4-9), The American College of Emergency Physicians (Oct. 13-17) and The American Academy of Opthalmology (Oct. 23-26), Macy’s saw store sales increase between 3%-18% overall during the span of the conferences.”

Spending by out-of-state event attendees and exhibitors has been calculated at $313,006,926 for 2013.

Sales Tax Receipts

Sales tax receipts generated from the spending by WSCC attendees from outside of Washington added up to over $21.6 million during 2013. This is in addition to the $9.2 million in lodging taxes generated to defray the costs of building the Convention Center and to market Seattle and Washington State to potential future meetings, tradeshows and conventions.

Convention Center Operations - OUTREACH

Strengthening the state’s economic vitality is only one role of WSCC. Civic initiatives have, and always will, remain an important mandate. The WSCC organizational outreach objectives of community, inclusion, marketplace and staff for 2013 are fundamental to the Center.

COMMUNITY

- WSCC received its fifth Washington State Wine AWARD OF DISTINCTION. WSCC remains the only convention or meeting facility in the state to receive this award.

- WSCC staff members painted SIX PIECES OF ARTWORK in four different designs that were donated to five local non-profit organizations in the Seattle area: Childhaven, the Stewart House at the Pike Place Market Foundation Plymouth Housing Group, Solid Ground and Neighborhood House.

- WSCC’s Chef José Chavez participated in FARESTART’S GUEST CHEF NIGHT, a weekly event that provides FareStart students the opportunity to work with Seattle’s premier chefs. Chef Chavez worked with FareStart’s students to create a three-course dinner in the restaurant at 7th & Virginia.

- The Convention Center hosted Cardinal Health’s RBC annual meeting for community pharmacists in August. ARAMARK supported the DONATION OF 430 TREE AND SHRUB SAPLINGS valued at $4,000 from Cardinal Health to Mountains to Sound Greenway. The saplings were planted across Western and Central Washington.

- The “TWINKLE TWINKLE FREEWAY PARK” celebration took place on December 6th in the Jim Ellis Freeway Park. This ceremonial lighting of trees was sponsored by the Freeway Park Association (FPA), of which the WSCC is an active and dues-paying member. The FPA provided hot chocolate and s’mores, and the Dickens Carolers serenaded attendees with seasonal music. The lights remained active during the dark winter months, providing a bit of visual appeal and security.

INCLUSION

- In Fiscal 2013, 23 NEW EMPLOYEES WERE HIRED AT WSCC, of which 39% were female and 43% were minorities. Job postings were sent to over 100 community-based organizations and ads were placed in The Seattle Times, The Seattle Medium, International Examiner, El Siete Dias and The Skanner newspapers.

- Overall MWBE UTILIZATION by the WSCC for fiscal 2013 is as follows:

MARKETPLACE

• WSCC hosted the CITY BUSINESS CASUAL event on May 9th, a monthly informal gathering that provides the Seattle business community with regular direct access to business-focused city officials, including influential leaders and key department heads and representatives.

• On August 14th, staff attended a social networking event sponsored by the NATIONAL SOCIETY FOR HISPANIC MBAS (NSHMBA) and MBA WOMEN INTERNATIONAL (MBAWI) at the Seattle Marriott Waterfront. Both the NSHMBA and MBAWI focus on increasing the diversity of business leaders and offering professional development, education, recruitment and networking opportunities.

• The Seattle Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce hosted ‘TOAST OF SEATTLE’ on June 21st at the Convention Center. WSCC staff attended. We provided an upgraded hot breakfast buffet within the client’s budget and from all reports, it was well received.

• THE HOUSING DEVELOPMENT CONSORTIUM, a new client in 2013, has expressed interest in returning to WSCC next spring for their annual luncheon.

• In support of charitable organization NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSE, the Convention Center provided an executive boardroom to conduct a focus group relative to their annual fundraising breakfast which will take place here once again in May 2014.

• The ACADEMY OF HOSPITALITY & TOURISM ADVISORY BOARD MEETING took place Friday, November 1st at the Convention Center. WSCC staff presented.

STAFF

• On Wednesday June 29th, employees, friends and family celebrated the CONVENTION CENTER’S 25TH ANNIVERSARY.

PRO CHEFS AT WSCC

WSCC is the first banquet and meeting facility with an all-Pro Chef certified culinary team. The Pro Chef Certification program was created by the Culinary Institute of America and the American Culinary Federation to provide hands-on skill validation, recognize professional achievement, and provide knowledge and credentials to advance the culinary experience to clients. Their skills were featured in July when Chefs José Chavez and Mayra Melka-Baldwin competed against some of Seattle’s best restaurant chefs at FareStart’s Guest Chef at the Waterfront event. WSCC won Best Entrée, Best Overall and achieved a tie for the People’s Choice award.

Washington State Convention Center’s award-winning programs to reduce waste and to purchase and serve locally sourced, sustainable food and beverage items continue to be very popular.

These certified chefs exceed expectations by creating uniquely regional dishes with the freshest ingredients provided by local farmers. In-season fruits and vegetables come from Northwest growers. The beef is from grain-fed cattle, fish from sustainable sources, and chicken from free-range farms. Breads and pastries are baked in-house daily using flour obtained from no-till farms in eastern Washington, and over 95 percent of the wines served are from the state’s outstanding wineries. Receptions are offered featuring wine bars, tastings led by wine makers, and special menu/wine pairings. This commitment has earned WSCC the Washington State Wine Award of Distinction five times – the only meeting and event facility to be so honored.
Executive Chef José Chavez fires up a WSCC signature dish in The Convention Center’s 15,000 square foot state-of-the-art kitchen.

BLUE BATTLE (lapiths & centaurs)

Michael C. Spafford, a noted Seattle painter, printmaker and professor emeritus from the University of Washington, donated his work Blue Battle (lapiths & centaurs) to the Washington State Convention Center at the end of 2013. This recognizable and well-loved piece has been on loan from Francine Seders Gallery for over 11 years.

After receiving an M.A. in art history at Harvard, Spafford spent three years in Mexico City where he painted full-time and exhibited. During these years he explored certain classic Greek mythological themes. His interest in mythology as a visual framework for thought and feeling was intensified by the two years he spent as a Fellow of the American Academy in Rome, from 1967 to 1969.

Members of the Art Foundation at WSCC and the Center’s art advisors enthusiastically support the gifting of this work to the Foundation and its display at the Convention Center.

IN 2013...

- 16 restrooms were completely renovated and updated with premium materials and fixtures
- Operable wall finishes were replaced in all ballroom spaces and level 6 meeting rooms
- All exterior signage was replaced & lighted signs were converted to LED
- 15,000 new meeting room chairs were installed and over 20 lounge areas were created with leather & high-end upholstery
- All lighted art displays and level 2 and 3 meeting rooms were retrofitted with LED
- Digital signage was installed throughout the center
- Level 6 lobby spaces received an updated ceiling tile grid
2013 was a big year for Washington State Convention Center building upgrades. All meeting rooms, ballrooms, boardrooms and exhibit halls were tastefully updated with features inspired by elegant Pacific Northwest ambience. 15,000 new meeting room chairs were installed, and over 20 new lounge areas were created using high-end leather and upholstery. The Level 6 lobby spaces received a brighter, more reflective ceiling tile grid to accent the newly created lounge spaces. Executive conference rooms received new tables and chairs. Sixteen restrooms underwent complete demolition and were updated with premium materials. New state-of-the-art public restrooms were installed on level one to better serve our retail partners. Wall finishes in all ballroom spaces and level 6 meeting rooms were replaced with new fabric. Clean, easy-to-read digital signage was installed at all meeting room locations and at dozens of elevator, lobby and entry locations. All lighted art displays on Levels 2 and 3 were retrofitted with high efficiency LED fixtures and lamps. The main parking garage was also retrofitted with a motion-sensor controlled LED system. Finally, all exterior signage was replaced with a more easily readable configuration and font style, and all lighted signs were converted to LED lights.

“We are putting in a lot of higher-end finishes, such as furniture and fireplaces in our lobbies to improve the facility’s look and feel for our clients.”

Jeffrey Blosser, President and CEO
Over the past year, the Washington State Convention Center has been studying the feasibility of building a new convention and meeting facility. The “sister” facility will potentially add up to 60,000 square feet of ballroom space, 100,000 square feet of meeting space, and 310,000 of exhibit space. The potential site for the proposed new facility includes the King County-owned Metro Transit station, one block from the existing WSCC facility and some neighboring properties.

The WSCC has taken a collaborative approach to planning the expansion, partnering with the city of Seattle, King County Metro, local businesses, and government officials to provide mutually beneficial solutions. Feasibility studies have indicated that an expanded facility could potentially bring 22 additional national conventions to Seattle.

ECONOMICS AT WORK

Since 1988, direct visitor spending from WSCC events has generated:

- $4.4 BILLION in out-of-state attendee spending
- $272 MILLION in sales tax for Washington State
- $162 MILLION in sales tax for local governments

EXPANDED WSCC FACILITIES

An expansion will add jobs and new revenues to Washington State.

- PROVIDE OPPORTUNITY
  - for Washington to attract larger conventions to Seattle
- PROVIDE SPACE
  - for local and regional events to grow and meet in Seattle
- ALLOW FOR MORE CONVENTIONS AND EVENTS
  - to increase economic benefits to the region

EXPANDING OUR VISION TO SUPPORT AN AWESOME COMMUNITY.

The sooner a second facility is built, the sooner the State of Washington will benefit from the additional revenues an expansion will bring in.
Convention Center FACILITY EXPANSION

A Washington State Convention Center expansion will provide long-term economic benefits to Washington with projected:
